GUESTS OF HUNGARIANS

(Special to the Standard)

Mezohelyes, Hungary, July 9.—As the guests of the Hungarian government members of the American commission on agricultural co-operation were shown over the government breeding farm here recently.

Horse breeding is one of the important industries of Hungary. The most noticeable characteristic of a Hungarian city to the stranger is the appearance of the horses on the streets. Even the cabs are two horse vehicles and the horses would do credit to many a private turnout in the United States. Militarism is back of the horse breeding industry, and the Hungarians have done precisely what Major General Leonard Wood would like to see done for the American army.

The government farm of Mezohelyes is about 35,000 acres. Nearly all of the land is given over to forage crops or pasture. The growth of forage is particularly heavy and its quality very high. There are altogether 2100 horses on the farm and this is but one of six such establishments in Hungary. The purpose of the institution is to keep up the quality of the horses bred, and to improve the cattle, sheep and farm stock of the entire country. The exhibition was impressive, more as an effort upon an enormous scale to secure practical results in cattle and horse breeding, than as a show farm of fancy stock.

The horses are bred for cavalry use and to secure a good agricultural breed. The stallions are sent out to government establishments over the country and are at the command of the farmers. The most important stallions of the long horn breed, similar to the English half-bred and the Anglo-Norman, and the horses are all of robust appearance and strong bone structure, making them admirably suited for agricultural use.

In the breeding of cows an effort is made to secure an animal that will serve both as a dairy cow and as a draft animal, for the small farmers of Hungary work their cows as well as to use them for milk. The Hungarian cow is not now of much use either as a dairy animal or as a beef animal. It is of the long horn breed, similar to the cattle of the western plains. Swiss cattle has been imported and various experiments are constantly being carried on to produce a combination dairy and draft animal. Some excellent types of Hungarian oxen were shown members of the commission.

The American commission was taken to the farm by a special train from Budapest. A cavalry post is maintained on the farm and the Americans were quartered in the officers' barracks. In one section of the barracks a group of ten of the Americans immediately established a bachelors' hall.

Before sun-up the next morning many of the Americans walked to the country market and watched the Hungarian peasants begin their market day. The women for the most part do the selling and spread their produce about them on the ground. The impression is being borne in upon the Americans that women do most of the work in Europe.

The government farm requires as many people as herdsmen and stable hands, besides the cavalry post, that it is quite a good sized village. Here especially the visitor was impressed with the enormous part played by the government in the development of agriculture. Undoubtedly European governments have come to consider agriculture as different from all other forms of industry, of far greater social importance, and as an industry standing in the need of government support and protection, to be brought to its highest state of development. The problem of keeping the peasantry up on the soil involves the question of national existence. It is a military problem, an economic problem, a problem to maintain the backbone of the nation. And what is done in Hungary to better the economic and social position of the farmer is done not so much for the farmers' sake as for the nation's sake, and in the belief that without the farmer, without successful and contented farmers, the nation cannot exist.

NAVAJO BLANKETS FREE THIS WEEK!

Tobacco Dealers Supplying Smokers
With This Pleasing Novelty

A Navajo blanket—miniature size, to be sure—will be given free by prominent tobacco dealers of Ogden, Utah, for the next few days to every purchaser of a package of Omar Cigarettes. These blankets exactly reproduce the beautiful color work and unique designs of the Navajo Indians. And because of its large size, five and a half by eight and one-half inches, this new novelty is practically only eight for a pillow top, and no very great number for table covers, den draperies, sashes, dress trimmings, etc.

The gift of these Navajo blankets through local dealers is made to ensure a wide trial of Omar Cigarettes, because of the belief on the part of the manufacturers that smokers generally will like and continue using this brand. It is said that the plan is fully justified by results in other cities. The cigarette is described as a new Turkish blend of very high quality, with a flavor and fragrance which are wholly different and unusually pleasing. The evident value of the gift blanket is certainly evidence of remarkable confidence. Adv.

ROCKEFELLER'S 74TH BIRTHDAY

Cleveland, O., July 9.—John D. Rockefeller celebrated his 74th birthday anniversary yesterday by playing more and working less than usual. He played golf with Dr. H. F. Biggar and his pastor, Rev. W. W. Bustard, rode his bicycle and sat with Mrs. Rockefeller, who is not in good health.

But he gave orders that he was not to be bothered by the stock reports which come over their private wire from Wall Street to Forest Hills. For one day the world's wealthiest man refused to pay any attention to anything but pleasure.

Scores of friends came to the lodge in the morning asking to see Rockefeller. Many of them brought small birthday gifts, books, flowers and photographs.

They were received by the diplomatic Pat Lynch, who told of the "Master's desire to spend a quiet, restful anniversary." They left their presents and went away.

Telephone and telegraph wires are down throughout the outlying towns and complete reports of the extent of the damage was slow in coming in. The storm seemed to center over Elgin, where two tempests met, and the residents found themselves suddenly surrounded by the blackness of midnight. Trees, electric light poles, houses and barns were toppled over. All trolley cars were forced to stop and the electric lighting plant was put out of commission.

THREE DIE IN STORM

Chicago, July 8.—Death and tremendous destruction to property, accompanied the severe wind and electrical storm that struck Chicago and this section of Illinois with sudden fury late today.

Telephone and telegraph wires are down throughout the outlying towns and complete reports of the extent of the damage was slow in coming in. The storm seemed to center over Elgin, where two tempests met, and the residents found themselves suddenly surrounded by the blackness of midnight. Trees, electric light poles, houses and barns were toppled over. All trolley cars were forced to stop and the electric lighting plant was put out of commission.

The bank balanced its cash and found that the bandit obtained $3800, which was all in currency and gold.

The sheriff hopes to catch up with the outlaw by this afternoon at the latest and if he does a battle is certain.

Denver, Colo., July 9.—An overflowing irrigation ditch two miles east of New Castle, undermining the main track of the Denver & Rio Grande, caused the wreck of the first section of passenger train No. 5 at 2 o'clock this morning. BANK ROBBER MAKES HAUL

Holds Up Cashier and Assistant of Rigby, Idaho, Bank and Locks Them in Vault—Secures $3,800 and Escapes—Posse in Full Pursuit

Rigby, Idaho, July 9.—Fleeing from a mounted posse twenty miles south-east of Rigby, a lone bandit, supposed to be Hugh Whitney, who robbed the State bank of Rigby yesterday afternoon, after locking two of the officials in the vault, is seeking to escape into the Jackson Hole country of its vicinity. Two years ago, following the holdup of an Oregon Short Line train and the killing of the conductor, he was chased into this difficult region, but escaped. Since that time he has made an occasional foray into Wyoming and Idaho towns and has carried off considerable plunder. The robbery yesterday if committed by him, is his biggest coup since the holdup of the train.

Frank Ellsworth, cashier, and Clarence Hart, assistant cashier, were working in their shirt sleeves and chatting idly when the bandit, effectually masked, walked in upon them. He entered by the rear door which had been left open because of the intense heat. The front door had been shut more than two hours before, as it was then 5:25 p. m.

Death Threats. "Hold up your hands," said the bandit as he covered the cashier and the assistant cashier with two revolvers. A fierce oath or two and threats to kill re-enforced his commands. "Back up into the safe, quick," he added, and the two men hurriedly retreated into the vault.

"Hand me out all the money you can reach and be fast, or I'll blow your heads off," he said with a vicious flourish of the revolvers. The cashier and his assistant passed out gold and bills amounting to about $3800. After filling his pockets and saddlebags, the bandit locked the safe and departed.

A few minutes later the 5-year-old son of the cashier toddled into the bank and called for "papa." The officials heard the boy's voice as a faint whisper and began to shout lustily. The child dimly understood the situation and ran out of the bank crying for help. Soon a number of citizens had entered the bank and released the imprisoned men.

Rescued Gray Horse. The bandit, who is described as of dark complexion with dark marks on his face, was seen by several persons as he rode away from the bank on a gray horse, but his departure was so quiet that it aroused no suspicion. His mask, which he cast aside as soon as he left the bank, was found a few minutes after the officials had been freed. The route of the bandit as he left the town was traced to the east.

Sheriff Harrop, who was on a train going south at the time of the robbery, was reached by a telegram and stopped at Rexburg. He immediately returned to Rigby and organized a posse which dashed away to the southeast in automobile.

Battle Is Expected. The robber went east about three miles, crossed what is called the "dry bed" at the island three miles further and then started south to the Willow Creek hill, the same trail that Hugh Whitney took when he passed through this country two years ago.

Those who saw the robber, who evidently was alone, declare that the description tallies exactly with that of Hugh Whitney.

The last information of him was obtained by the sheriff, who was in George E. Hill's automobile, where the bandit passed the Heath ranch on Willow creek, seven miles southeast of Rigby. He reached the hill at dusk. The party then returned to town and organized a posse to go on horseback and they intend riding out on the east side of Willow creek to the vicinity of Hell creek, where they hope to intercept the robber.

The bank balanced its cash and found that the bandit obtained $3800, which was all in currency and gold.

The sheriff hopes to catch up with the outlaw by this afternoon at the latest and if he does a battle is certain.
